Module aims

The module enables creative writers to work closely with a practitioner in a specific genre for two terms, allowing the student to specialise at a crucial time of their development as a writer. The Personal Writing Project is especially useful for students who seriously intend a career as a professional writer or are considering a post-graduate degree in creative writing. Previously chosen by more than 90% of our students, we are now designating it as our core Level 6 module.

Outline syllabus

This is an indicative module outline only to give an indication of the sort of topics that may be covered. Actual sessions held may differ.

There is no syllabus. A series of one-to-one discussions should be held with the student at least four times a term.

Learning outcomes

By the end of the module, students should be able to:

- The main purposes of this module are to enable students to develop their practical and creative skills in a specific genre, and also their critical skills in exploring the aims and processes involved in their work and that of notable practitioners.
- They will also gain critical insights into the work of other contemporary writers and the processes of literary production.
- Producing a portfolio of creative writing;
- Examining critical concepts and practice in a genre of fiction or poetry or stage-writing or screen-writing;
- Understanding, through practice and discussion, the research needed for a larger scale creative work, and the structures and styles necessary for executing such a work;
- Conceptualising the student's own practice as a writer in relation to other writers' work and practice.

Indicative reading list

The supervisor will provide tailored reading lists appropriate to the project.

Subject specific skills

The main purposes of this module are to enable students to develop their practical and creative skills in a specific genre, and also their critical skills in exploring the aims and processes involved in their work and that of notable practitioners. They will also gain critical insights into the work of other contemporary writers and the processes of literary production. The module will assist the student in:

1. Producing a portfolio of creative writing;
2. Examining critical concepts and practice in a genre of fiction or poetry or stage-writing or screen-writing;
3. Understanding, through practice and discussion, the research needed for a larger scale creative work, and the structures and styles necessary for executing such a work;
4. Conceptualising the student's own practice as a writer in relation to other writers' work and practice.

Transferable skills

Demonstrate a practical and critical knowledge of one of the following genres in terms of subject, appropriate research, synthesis of materials, language, genre, form, narrative, character, and description, and of representative examples by published writers, namely: poetry, fiction, stage-writing and screen-writing.
