Description

Introductory description

This module provides an advanced introduction to Nietzsche, one of the most seminal thinkers in the tradition of continental philosophy.

Module aims

The principal aim of this module is to provide an advanced introduction to Nietzsche and a rich appreciation of aspects of his intellectual development and philosophical character. To aid the inquiry the module draws upon the best recent and current Anglo-American research on Nietzsche, as well as making use where relevant of seminal texts from within the history of Nietzsche-reception. The focus is on the texts of Nietzsche's fertile but often neglected middle period. Whilst early commentators such as Havelock Ellis considered these writings to be the pinnacle of Nietzsche's intellectual maturity, core aspects of them remain under-studied to this day and they have played little role in the 'continental' reception of Nietzsche. The module aims to show that these writings are of crucial importance to any genuine appreciation of Nietzsche's philosophical practice. Texts to be studied include the volumes of Human, all too Human, Dawn, and The Gay Science.
