Description

Introductory description

This module provides a comprehensive introduction to the political system of the United States of America and to the rival theoretical accounts explaining the political outcomes this system generates. It focuses on the ideas that influence US politics, and the key actors that participate in the American political system. These actors include the President, Congress, the Supreme Court, political parties, and the electorate. It also assesses the power and influence of informal actors that affect US politics such as the media and special interest groups, as well as considering the impact of race, ethnicity, gender and religion on political participation and representation. Finally, the module explores the political formulation of foreign policy.

Module aims

The module aims to:

- Provide students with a comprehensive overview of how government and politics are organised in the United States, focusing on the federal level;
- Introduce students to the complex and distinct nature of American political institutions, along with their historical and ideational basis;
- Locate contemporary US politics within the context of the theoretical debates on the nature of the US political system, and its relation with the rest of the world.
