Module aims

The core themes of the module are critical issues in management and the analytical structuring of unstructured problems. The learning methods are student-centred, requiring students to work in small syndicates (of 5-6 members) and to present and discuss their work in small seminar groups (of twenty to twenty-five). The module material requires consideration of case studies, key management and organization theories and problem solving and creative approaches. The case studies themselves constitute the most significant element of the module. They represent complex, real-world management issues that are of pressing concern to current organizations and managers. A critical analysis requires problematising the context, identifying issues, imagining alternatives, ranking preferences, resolving dilemmas, and considering recommendations and processes for managing change, all of which are crucial in today's world of business.

Outline syllabus

This is an indicative module outline only to give an indication of the sort of topics that may be covered. Actual sessions held may differ.

- Applied theory, (demonstrated critical thinking, evaluated options, developed recommendations etc.
- Managing (in) organisations.
- Leadership & Followership.
- Accountability & Responsibility.
- Power & Resistance.
- Culture.
- Ethics.

Learning outcomes

By the end of the module, students should be able to:

- Understand key issues in management as multidisciplinary and multifaceted phenomena [Bloom's taxonomy: understand].
- Analyse complex, ill-structured management problems with no 'right answer' [Bloom's taxonomy: analyse].
- Independently research, synthesize and critically elaborate on complex, ill-structured problems (both oral and written).
