Description

Introductory description

This module comprises a series of lectures and related seminars which look at the two themes of The Natural World and The Arts of Modernity. Covering a period from the eighteenth century to the present day, the module will provide a historical survey of western art which - instead of a conventional canonical and chronological approach - employs one which encourages stimulating cross-comparisons across time and space.

Module aims

This module will introduce students to the broad spectrum of images, ideas and approaches which the history of art comprises. Students will acquire a basic grasp of the essential areas which they will need to use as reference points for other modules in the degree. It will also provide a useful introduction to the history of art for students outside the department.

Students will gain a broadly chronological foundation in the relevant factual material and learn core skills of visual analysis, use of specialist vocabulary and methodology, essay writing and seminar presentation essential to their progress.
