Description

Introductory description

The module is formed by a series of lectures and related seminars that address the intertwined themes of Classicism and Christianity. The module will provide a historical survey of western art concentrating on late antique, medieval and Renaissance art, periods with which our first year students are often unfamiliar. The lectures follow a broadly chronological sweep, while the related seminars will concentrate on issues of technique, terminology and iconography.

Module aims

The key aim of this module is to empower students with the ability to describe what they see – in terms of how an image or object is made, as well as its form and iconography. Students will acquire a basic grasp of the essential areas which they will need to use as reference points for other modules in the degree. It will also provide a useful introduction to the history of art for students outside the department.

Students will gain a broadly chronological foundation in the relevant factual material, and will develop core skills of visual analysis, use of specialist vocabulary and methodology, essay writing and seminar presentation essential to their progress.
