Description

Introductory description

PH149 - Key Debates in Moral and Political Philosophy

Module aims

The aim of this module is to introduce you to fundamental concepts and theories in moral and political philosophy. The module will use classic texts as a launchpad to exploring debates in contemporary moral and political philosophy.

Outline syllabus

This is an indicative module outline only to give an indication of the sort of topics that may be covered. Actual sessions held may differ.

1. Moral Philosophy (weeks 1 – 5)

This part of the module will be based on Mill's Utilitarianism and explore questions such as the following, for example:

What is the highest good?

What is the right thing to do?
The demandingness of morality
Moral integrity
Disagreeing about moral value

2. Political Philosophy (weeks 7 – 10)

This part of the module will be based on Hobbes' Leviathan and explore questions such as the following, for example:

What would the world be like without states?
When is political authority legitimate?
Should we always obey political authorities?
Are states inherently unjust?

Learning outcomes

By the end of the module, students should be able to:

- At the end of the module, you should have a good understanding of key debates in moral and political philosophy.
- At the end of the module, you should be able to use some of the main concepts that moral and political philosophers have used to analyse how we should live and how we should live together.
