Description

Introductory description

The module contextualises later modern history by providing a framework in which major historical processes of the later modern era are studied on a world-wide scale.

Module aims

'Making of the Modern World' is the first-year core module for all full-time History single honours and joint degree students. It may also be taken as an option by part-time students, visiting students, and students from other departments. The module is only available as a 30 CATS version. The module moves away from a Eurocentric and narrative focus and provides more scope for historical approaches based on, among other things, culture, identity and environmental history. The central focus of the module is the rise of the modern, its diffusion and resistance to it. Central features are the Enlightenment, the rise of democracy, industrialisation, imperialism and political and cultural revolution.

Study

Study time

Type	Required
Lectures	42 sessions of 1 hour (14%)
Seminars	21 sessions of 1 hour (7%)
Tutorials	2 sessions of 1 hour (1%)
Practical classes	3 sessions of 2 hours (2%)
Private study	229 hours (76%)
Total	300 hours

Private study description

History modules require students to undertake extensive independent research and reading to prepare for seminars and assessments. As a rough guide, students will be expected to read and prepare to comment on three substantial texts (articles or book chapters) for each seminar taking approximately 3 hours. Each assessment requires independent research, reading around 6-10 texts and writing and presenting the outcomes of this preparation in an essay, review, presentation or other related task.
